HINTS ON PLANTING.

November and December are the best months in which to plant all hardy trees and plants such as fruit trees, shade trees, grape vines, strawberry plants, asparagus; all hardy bulbs, such as hyacinths, tulips, narcissus, lilies, etc., all hardy shrubs, roses included, though the latter should have a mulch of about three inches of well rotted manure or some other light material put over their roots to prevent severe freezing from penetrating the ground.

A tree or hardy shrub or vine planted during the above months will make roots during the winter in our climate and is ready to grow off even in a dry spring and will make far better growth than if planted in February and March. If all who intend to plant could be convinced of this, there would be less failure provided a suitable preparation of the ground had been made. Deep plowing or spading and liberal manuring are the bases of success.

We give the following short hints on planting which we have advocated for many years and if followed failure will be rare and must be attributed to some other cause such as insects, soggy soil or mechanical injury:

Enrich the land; poor land will produce poor fruit and poor flowers.
Always choose the highest ground for the orchard. If the land is rolling, give peaches the highest part of it.
Dig a hole two or more feet wide and one or more feet deep, mixing with the soil, which is to be returned in planting, a bushel of woods-mold or one-half bushel of well-decomposed manure.
Plant standard trees, so that the top roots are about three inches below the level of the ground.
A tree planted too deep will not thrive.
Cut back one year old standard apple, pear and peach trees to two and one-half feet, and cut off every side-limb; and when the shoots have grown an inch or two in the Spring, rub off all except the three upper ones; these will form the head of the future tree.
All bruised or broken roots should be cut smooth.
Two or three year old trees should have their branches cut back to about one-half of their length.
To face the stem of the tree in the same direction as it stood in the nursery, is of no value whatever.

Though we can plant from November to March, November and December planting will give the trees a better start in the spring.

Always bear in mind that an orchard requires good care and attention; but when that is given, the orchard is one of the most valuable additions to the farm.
Pigs and poultry will thrive in an orchard; they will eat the fallen fruit and thus destroy the curculio and codling moth.

Plant standard apple, pear and peach trees twenty feet apart each way in the orchard; cherry and plum trees, fifteen feet; grape vines, ten feet.

Strawberries are planted for family use in the garden, in rows two feet apart, and about one foot in the row; for market purposes plant in rows three to four feet apart, and fifteen to eighteen inches in the rows. Always keep free from grass and weeds.

We add to the above hints the following:

See to it that the trees or plants which you receive from the nursery have their roots in a moist condition; if they are dry, refuse to receive them, but if you find that they are in the proper condition keep them so and do not blame the nurseryman if the roots become dry when in your possession. Remember that a plant is a living body and if out of the ground is like a fish out of the water and it is then a question of time as to the amount of injury it will receive. Hence the holes in which to plant should be made ready when the order for the plants is sent; but this is not all. As soon as the trees or shrubs arrive their roots must be put in trenches in the ground and watered and only taken out one by one as they are wanted, or if there are but few plants, their roots should be watered and covered with wet bagging and only taken out one by one as they are wanted for planting. If, when the trees arrive, the soil is too wet for planting, they can be kept in the trench until the ground is in good condition.

Always surround the roots with friable soil and after the tree or bush is in position, press the soil firmly around the roots and give a good watering.
READ THE FOLLOWING TERMS AND CONDITIONS BEFORE ORDERING.

Address letters to J. J. COLMANT, BIRMINGHAM, ALA., R. F. D 2.
Correspondents should sign their names in full, giving also names of Postoffice, County and State.

State also, if trees are to be shipped by Freight or Express.
Packages not exceeding fifty pounds are best sent by Express.

We charge for packing just enough to cover cost of material used, which is, say 25 cents for every $5.00 worth of trees and plants.

We guarantee that all our stock shall leave the Nurseries in the best condition; but after the goods have been delivered to the forwarding agents, they are at the risk of the purchaser, and forwarders alone must be held responsible for delay or loss of goods.

We do not ship plants and trees by mail.

Send orders in early, it will facilitate our business and enable us to furnish all varieties contained in the Catalogue before they are exhausted. We do not substitute unless instructed to do so.

We commence shipping early in November.

We have made it a rule not to ship Nursery Stock until the money for the same has been received; and to avoid unnecessary delay, the amount for trees and plants, including charges for packing, should be sent by Postoffice Money Order or Express Money Order on Birmingham, Ala. When orders cannot be procured, send money in registered letters. We cannot conduct our business on a credit system.

We have had over twenty-five years experience in fruit growing in this latitude, and are well acquainted with the wants of our people.

It is our interest and our pride to have all Trees and Plants leave our Nurseries true to name and in the best condition, but we assume no responsibility whatever if failures arise from defective planting, or from subsequent faulty treatment and cultivation.

If, in spite of our care and precaution, any tree should prove untrue to label, we will, on proper proof, either return the money paid to us for them, or replace the trees free of charges. And it is hereby mutually agreed and understood between the purchaser and ourselves that in no case can we be held liable for any greater amount of money than originally paid to us by the purchaser.

J. J. COLMANT,
FRUIT DEPARTMENT.

APPLES.

The Summer and Fall varieties in the Catalogue seldom fail to produce a paying crop if planted in good soil. The Winter varieties are mostly of Southern origin, and will in suitable localities produce good keeping Apples. Time and money are wasted if Winter Apples of Northern or European origin are planted south of thirty-four degrees latitude.

The profuse flowering kind, $3.00 per 100.
ROSES.

This list contains the best and most reliable varieties, including this year's introduction. Quite a number of roses not in this list are excellent under glass culture, but are of little value in our climate for outdoor culture. The roses in this list are on their own roots. All my roses are growing in the open ground, and the plants which I offer for sale have been blooming since last May. We cut many thousand buds every year, and cultivate none but the best and most reliable varieties. These plants are perfectly hardy and can be planted at any time from November to March, but if planted in the winter, some mulch, cotton seed hulls or wood-mold should be placed near the stems, on the top of the earth, to prevent freezing of the roots. When planting Tea, Hybrid Tea, Bourbon and Polyantha Roses should be cut back to about four inches, leaving only two or three of the strongest branches. Cut back Remontant Roses to about one foot. Before shipping, we cut plants to about one to two feet, otherwise they would be too bulky. Roses require a deep, well-worked soil, enriched with stable manure or bone meal or both. With reasonable cultivation, the Rose will afford more satisfaction than any other flowering plant. Roses of the sizes which I sell are quoted in the catalogues of Northern rose growers at 50c and more. No plants will be sent by mail. They are too large.

Prices—25c each; $2.50 per 10; $20.00 per 100, except where noted.

ALABAMA STATE BOARD OF HORTICULTURE.

OFFICIAL CERTIFICATE, No. 20.

To Whom It May Concern:

This is to Certify, That in accordance with an Act of the Legislature, approved March 5, 1903, an examination was made of the Nurseries of J. J. Colmant, at Birmingham, on the 26th day of September, and that the stock in these nurseries was found apparently free from the San Jose Scale and all other insects and diseases of a seriously injurious nature.

This certificate is to cover only stock grown in the above named nurseries, and becomes invalid after July 15, 1904.
